PETER HEISE: OUVERTURE TIL “MARSK STIG”

Peter Heises beskæftigelse med historien om Marsk Stig og mordet på Kong Erik Glipping i Finderup Lade i 1286 er bedst kendt fra operaen Drot og Marsk, men begyndte allerede næsten et kvart århundrede tidligere. Da Carsten Hauchs skuespil Marsk Stig blev sat op på Det Kongelige Teater i 1850, var det ganske vist med musik af Henrik Rung, men stoffet inspirerede også Peter Heise, som i 1855 komponerede en sang med klaverledsagelse over sangen Det dæmred alt i Skoven fra første akt af Hauchs skuespil. Sangen findes bevaret som autograf med titlen Dands af Marsk Stig i en samling Heise-sange,<sup>1</sup> som har tilhørt Pauline Holm.<sup>2</sup>

Peter Heise: Dands af Marsk Stig, sangstemme.

I efteråret og vinteren 1855-56 komponerede Heise en koncertouverture over det samme emne med udgangspunkt i denne sang. I et brev til Jacob Voltelen<sup>3</sup> skriver Heise:

“[...] Hin Ouverture til Marsk Stig er bygget paa en Melodi som jeg i den Anledning har componeret til Sangen i Tragedien: ‘Det dæmred alt i Skoven’, denne Sang synes Folk især om, og jeg troer ogsaa, den siger mere end Rungs, skjøndt hans egentlig ikke var saa gal endda. Ligesom hin Sang i Tragedien spiller en betydelig Rolle, bør den ogsaa gjøre det i en Ouverture dertil.”<sup>4</sup>

I slutningen af januar 1856 nærmer arbejdet med ouverturen sig sin afslutning, som det fremgår af et brev fra Peter Heise til sin bror Frederik:

“Nu har jeg atter et større Værk for, nemlig en Ouverture à grand orchestre til Hauchs Tragedie ‘Marsk Stig’, som Gade er meget fornøjet med og meget animerer mig til. Nu har den rigtignok hvilet fra Julen af. Det var nemlig den 27de Januar Mozarts hundredaarige Fødselsdag; Theatret gjorde mærkværdig nok Intet i den Anledning, men ude hos Holms havde jeg arrangeret en musikalisk Aften, hvor Damer og Herrer, lutter gode Stemmer, udførte Mozartske Sager, og det løb meget godt af. Tillige havde Studenterne havt en Afskedsfest for Høstrup, hvortil jeg havde componeret Noget, som ligeledes for-drede Prøver, derved er jeg blevet noget forstyrret i hiin Ouverture, som ellers er componeret færdig og instrumenteret halvt, men nu skal jeg have fat paa den igjen.”<sup>5</sup>

Den første opførelse af koncertouverturen, som omfatter tre tempi (Andante – Allegro molto – Prestissimo), fandt først sted to år senere i Musikforeningen. Ved den lejlighed benyttedes en afskrift (kilde C), som blev udfærdiget til formålet efter Heises egen autograf (kilde A). Afskriften bærer Heises signatur og er dateret februar 1858. Ouverturen indledte konerten den 27. februar 1858, dirigeret af Niels W. Gade. På programmet i øvrigt var Julius Rietz’ Altdeutscher Schlachtgesang for mandskor og orkester, Beethovens 7. symfoni og første akt af Glucks opera Alceste. Tidsskrift for Musik vurderede efterfølgende ouverturen som følger:

“Med Ouverturen til ‘Marsk Stig’ er P. Heise, hvem vi hidtil kun have kjendt som Sangcomponist, for første Gang traadt ind paa et Gebeet af mere omfattende musikalsk Betydning, og det glæder os, at den unge Componist ved dette vellykkede Arbeide fuldkomment har lagt sin Berettigelse hertil for Dagen. Ouverturen er anlagt med en dristig og sikker Haand; den er smukt formet, tiltalende i melodisk henseende, og efterlader navnlig ved sin effectfulde Slutning et varigere Indtryk. Et Par grelle eller søgte Modulationer havde vi helst ønsket forandrede.”<sup>6</sup>

Også Dagbladet hæftede sig ved, at især "Slutningen gjør [...] en storartet Virkning", og havde også "hørt Mænd af Faget udtale en meget gunstig Dom om dette Arbeide."<sup>7</sup>

Ouverturen opførtes to gange i Musikforeningen, anden gang ved abonnementskoncerten den 19. december 1865, men har ikke i Heises levetid været spillet i forbindelse med Hauchs skuespil.

I 1875 tog Heise atter fat på Marsk Stig-stoffet, denne gang med kompositionen af en hel opera for øje. Operaen Drot og Marsk var ikke direkte baseret på Hauchs skuespil, men på en libretto af Christian Richardt. Heise valgte at genbruge den 20 år gamle koncertouverture, men forkortede den med omkring en fjerdedel fra de oprindelige 659 takter til 485 takter. Seks steder i Marsk Stig-ouverturen har Heise helt strøget længere passager eller erstattet dem med kortere. Springene er markeret i det autografe Marsk Stig-partitur (kilde A) med bemærkningen vi-[...]-de, indført med blyant på følgende steder:

- Fra tre takter før E (t. 86) til tre takter før F (til og med t. 123). Bemærkning nederst s. 9: NB / med forandret / Opgang til Pag. 13.
- Fra t. 157 til og med t. 166.
- Fra I (t. 225) til og med t. 263.
- Fra t. 334 (oprindeligt fra 350) til og med t. 373. De sidste fire takter før springet er ændret med blyant på s. 29, et efterfølgende indskud på otte takter noteret på s. 33.
- Fra t. 382 til og med t. 397.
- Fra O (t. 468) til P (til og med t. 506).

Partituret sammenfatter hele ouverturens tilblivelseshistorie: Det indeholder den første optegnelse af ouverturen med blæk, tidlige ændringer især i form af klangforstærkende tilføjelser, indført med rød farveblyant (inkluderet i Musikforeningens partitur og stemmer, kilde B og C fra 1858), delvis komplettering af dynamik og buer med blyant (indført efterfølgende i kilde B med blæk, formodentlig i forbindelse med en af opførelserne i Musikforeningen) og endelig igen med blyant mindre rettelser og de nævnte spring i forbindelse med udarbejdelsen af operaouverturen omkring år 1877. I operapartituret,<sup>8</sup> der med hensyn til ouverturen altså er en renskrift af de seneste ændringer i kilde A, har Heise desuden tilføjet en mængde detaljer, der ikke først er blevet skitseret i kilde A, og altså først er indført i forbindelse med renskriften. Det drejer sig især om yderligere komplettering og forfinelse af dynamik og frasering. Ved samme lejlighed blev de dybe messingblæsere – oprindeligt alt-, tenor- og bastrombone – erstattet af den mere moderne besætning med to tenor tromboner og tuba.

Også efter uropførelsen af operaen på Det Kongelige Teater den 25. september 1878 fik ouverturen positiv omtale. Nationaltidende afsluttede en udførlig anmeldelse af operaen med den bemærkning, at

"Vi skulle endnu kun fremhæve Ouverturen, et større symfonisk Arbeide, der formentlig har været udført i 'Musikforeningen' for adskillige Aar siden, men som i hvert Fald nu fremtræder med Nyhedens Interesse, og som er baade indholdsrig og smukt formet, væsenlig i den ældre Ouverture-Stil; at den iafte ikke blev applauderet, synes meget besynderligt. Hvad ydre Udstyrelse angår, er der anvendt meget – men dog ikke for meget – paa 'Drot og Marsk'."<sup>9</sup>

I 1899 udkom ouverturen i form af Axel Grandjeans klaverudtog for 4 hænder med titlen OUVERTURE / til / "Marsk Stig" / Tragedie af C. Hauch / komponeret / af / P. HEISE, men trods titlen var der ikke tale om et arrangement af den oprindelige Marsk Stig-ouverture, men derimod af operaversionen fra uropførelsen af Drot og Marsk i 1878, altså den noget kortere version. Det er sandsynligvis netop dette klaverudtog, der har været årsag til den i eftertidne udbredte opfattelse, at Heise genanvendte sin tyve år gamle komposition i sin fulde udstrækning.

At ouverturen også i operaversionen – ligesom operaen som helhed – angiveligt forekom kritikken for lang, var ifølge Gustav Hetsch grunden til at Heise forkortede den yderligere umiddelbart efter uropførelsen:

"Ligesom den første Opførelse modtoges ogsaa den anden, der fandt Sted 4 Dage senere, med stærkt Bifald af det udsolgte Hus. Der var anden Aften foretaget Forkortelser i Ouverturen. Men Kritiken fastslog, at der skulde foretages endnu flere Beskæringer."<sup>10</sup>

De trykte anmeldelser efter uropførelsen udtrykker ganske vist ingen sådan kritik, men det er muligt, at Hetsch refererer mundtlige tilkendegivelser. Det står i hvert fald fast, at Heise valgte at forkorte ouverturen radikalt, indtil den i sin endelige form kun bibeholdt den langsomme indledning. Den ene blanke side i partituret mellem ouverturen og første akt udnyttede Heise til at komponere en ny slutning – en ganske kort overgang på 4 takter, der attacca leder over i første akt. Denne korte version er på kun 54 takter i alt.

Operapartituret og nogle af orkesterstemmerne fra Det Kongelige Teater indeholder dog også tegn på, at en lidt mindre radikal forkortelse, der kun udelod den lange midterdel, har været afprøvet på et tidspunkt. Axel Grandjeans klaverudtog af ouverturen for 4 hænder bemærker overensstemmende nederst på første side, at ouverturen "Benyttedes i sin Helhed ved den første Opførelse af 'Drot og Marsk', siden udelodes Allegroen". Medmindre Grandjean regner det afsluttende Prestissimo som en del af Allegroen, beskriver han netop den form, der kun udelader den lange midterdel. På den anden side er denne form ikke dokumenteret på anden måde end gennem blyantsanmærknings i Heises autografe partitur og nogle af de tilhørende stemmer, og den overlevede i hvert fald ikke operaens første sæson, som Heises tilføjede overledning fra den langsomme indledning til første akt bevidner.<sup>11</sup> Grandjeans eget klaverudtog af hele operaen (1879 og senere genudgivelser) indeholder også kun ouverturen i den helt korte form, der udelader både Allegro- og Prestissimo-delen.

Ouverturen kendes altså i alt i fire forskellige versioner:

- Andante – Allegro molto – Prestissimo; 659 takter (den oprindelige Marsk Stig-ouverture fra 1856)
- Andante – Allegro molto – Prestissimo; 485 takter (fra uropførelsen af Drot og Marsk, 1878)
- Andante – Prestissimo; 152 takter (ca. 1878, muligvis aldrig opført)
- Andante; 54 takter (den endelige version med ny overgang til første akt)

Den foreliggende publikation repræsenterer den første version. De øvrige tre kan umiddelbart aflæses eller genskabes af DCM's udgave af Drot og Marsk (jf. forordet til samme).

Ouverturen er et stykke programmusik, der musikalsk iscenesætter handlingen og de centrale personer i Carsten Hauchs skuespil. Ret beset er der altså ikke tale om en ouverture til skuespillet Marsk Stig, sådan som den også af Heise selv benævnes i kilderne, men over det. Musikkens programmatiske karakter er særlig tydelig i den foreliggende koncertouverture, hvor de forskellige (person-)motiver dels udfoldes over længere passager, dels konfronteres med hinanden i mere dialogagtig form. Det var især de sidstnævnte, dialogiske afsnit og en række overledende passager, som Heise valgte at skære væk i operaouverturen.

Et af de gennemgående motiver er det, der som nævnt tager udgangspunkt i sangen Det dæmred alt i Skoven. Det antydes første gang i den langsomme indledning (bogstav B) og udfoldes fuldt to gange i Allegro-delen (bogstav H og N). Selv om der musikalsk således kan trækkes en linje direkte fra Det dæmred alt i Skoven til Drot og Marsk-ouverturen godt tyve år senere, gik Heise dog ikke så vidt som til at indarbejde substantielt materiale fra ouverturen i selve operaens akter. Ouverturen fremstår derfor også i Drot og Marsk som en selvstændig helhed, der med eget musikalsk materiale resumerer Heises fortolkning af historien om Marsk Stig.

PETER HEISE: ‘MARSHAL STIG’ OVERTURE

Peter Heise’s absorption with the legend about Marsk Stig<sup>1</sup> and the murder of King Erik Glipping in Finderup in 1286 is best known from the opera Drot og Marsk (King and Marshal) but it had already started to pique the interest of the composer almost a quarter of a century earlier. When Carsten Hauch’s play Marsk Stig was mounted at The Royal Theatre in 1850, it did feature music composed by Henrik Rung but the substance of the piece also served to inspire Peter Heise, who in 1855 composed a song with piano accompaniment based on the song Det dæmred alt i Skoven (Twilight was Already Falling in the Woods) from the first act of Hauch’s play. The song is extant as an autograph score bearing the title Dands af Marsk Stig (Dance from ‘Marsk Stig’) in a collection of Heise-songs<sup>2</sup> that once belonged to Pauline Holm.<sup>3</sup>

Peter Heise: Dands af Marsk Stig, vocal part.

In the autumn and the winter of 1855–56, Heise composed a concert overture that was built over the same subject, taking his point of departure from this song. In a letter to Jacob Voltelen,<sup>4</sup> Heise writes:

1 Stig Andersen Hvide, Danish nobleman, magnate, leading general and minister of war.

3 Pauline Frederikke Marie Holm (1826–1914), daughter of konferensråd and head of department in the Ministry of Finance, Christian Frederik Holm, and Marie Elisabeth Holm, née Engelbreth. Pauline Holm was characterised by Gustav Hetsch as a “Romance songstress with a very beautiful voice”. Gustav Hetsch, Peter Heise. Copenhagen 1926, p. 29.

4 Jacob Emil Voltelen (1827–1856), author.

[...] This Overture to Marsk Stig is built on a melody that I, for the occasion, have composed to the song in the tragedy: ‘Det dæmred alt i Skoven’, a song of which people seem to be especially fond, and I actually feel that it does say more than Rung’s, even though his was actually quite a fine piece of work, after all. Just as the song plays an important role in the tragedy, it ought to do so in the overture to the play, also.”<sup>5</sup>

At the end of January 1856, his work on the overture was drawing to its close, as is made evident in a letter from Peter Heise to his brother, Frederik:

“Now, once again, I am working on a large-scale work, namely an Ouverture à grand orchestre for Hauch’s tragedy, ‘Marsk Stig’, with which Gade is very pleased and to which he very much encourages me. Now, I must say, it has been put aside since Christmastime. In fact, on the 27th of January, it was the hundredth anniversary of Mozart’s birthday: curiously enough, the Theatre did nothing to commemorate the occasion. But out at Holm’s place, I had arranged a musical evening, where a number of ladies and gentlemen, all with fine voices, performed Mozartian pieces and did so quite well. Moreover, the students were throwing a farewell party for Hostrup, for which I had composed something, which similarly called for rehearsals. For these reasons, I have been intermittently disturbed in my work on creating this overture, which is otherwise finished, compositionally, and now stands half orchestrated. But now I am going to have to take hold of the project again.”<sup>6</sup>

The first performance of the concert overture, which comprises three different tempi (Andante – Allegro molto – Prestissimo), did not take place until two years later at Musikforeningen (The Music Society). On this occasion, a transcript (source C) was used, which was copied out for the purpose after Heise’s own autograph (source A). The transcript bears Heise’s signature and is dated February 1858. The overture was the opening piece of a concert on 27 February 1858 that was conducted by Niels W. Gade. Also on the program were Julius Rietz’s Altdeutscher Schlachgesang for men’s choir and orchestra, Beethoven’s Seventh Symphony and the first act of Gluck’s opera Alceste. The periodical Tidsskrift for Musik evaluated the overture in the following way:

“With the Overture to ‘Marsk Stig’, P. Heise, whom we have known hitherto only as a composer of songs, has stepped forward into a domain of more wide-ranging musical implications, for the first time, and we are pleased that this young composer, with this piece, has so consummately proved his aptitude in this field. The overture has been outlined with a daring and steady hand: its formal scheme is highly exquisite, it is prepossessing in a melodic sense and especially with its effective closing it leaves a lasting impression. There are, however, a few glaring or contrived modulations that we would have liked to see altered.”<sup>7</sup>

The Dagbladet also noticed that especially “the closing made [...] a splendid effect”, and also reported that “men in the profession had been heard passing a very favourable judgment on this piece.”<sup>8</sup>

The overture was played twice at Musikforeningen, the second time at a subscription concert on 19 December 1865, but was not played in conjunction with Hauch’s play during Heise’s lifetime.

In 1875, Heise grabbed hold of the Marsk Stig subject once again, this time with the composition of an entire whole opera in mind. The opera King and Marshal was not based directly on Hauch’s play but rather on a libretto penned by Christian Richardt. Heise chose to use the twenty year old concert overture again but he shortened it, in the first instance, by about one quarter of its length, from the original 659 bars to 485 bars. There are six instances in the Marsk Stig Overture of Heise simply having deleted longer passages or replacing them with shorter ones. These cuts are indicated in the autograph of the Marsk Stig score (source A) with the remark vi-...-de, added in pencil in the following places:

- From three bars before E (b. 86) to three bars before F (up to and including b. 123). Comment at the bottom of p. 9: NB / med forandret / Opgang til Pag. 13 (nota bene / with altered / transition to page 13).
- From b. 157 up to and including b. 166.
- From I (b. 225) up to and including b. 263.
- From b. 334 (originally from bar 350) up to and including b. 373. The last four bars before the cut are changed in pencil on p. 29 and a subsequent insertion of eight bars is noted on p. 33.
- From b. 382 up to and including b. 397.
- From O (b. 468) to P (up to and including b. 506).

The score reflects the history of the whole overture’s genesis: it contains the first sketch of the overture, made in ink; early expansions of the instrumentation, entered in red crayon (changes included in Musikforeningen’s score and parts, sources B and C from 1858); occasional completion of dynamics and slurs, made in pencil (added subsequently in source B in ink, presumably in connection with one of the performances at Musikforeningen); and lastly, and again, entered in pencil, a number of minor corrections and the marking of the aforementioned cuts effected in connection with the preparation of the opera overture, emended sometime around 1877. In the opera score,<sup>9</sup> which, in the case of the overture, is thus a fair copy of the most recent changes in source A, Heise has also added a great many details that were not outlined beforehand in source A and were accordingly first introduced in connection with the fair copy. These emendations chiefly have to do with the further supplementation and refinement of the dynamics and the phrasings. On the same occasion, the lower brass parts – originally alto-, tenor- and bass-trombones – were replaced by the more modern ensemble set-up, consisting of two tenor-trombones and tuba.

Also after the premiere of the opera at The Royal Theatre on 25 September 1878, positive response to the overture appeared in the press. The Nationaltidende concluded its detailed review of the opera with the comment that “Finally, we want to call attention to the overture, a major symphonic work, which was supposedly played at ‘Musikforeningen’ a good many years ago but which, in any event, now makes its appearance with all the charm of novelty and which is both full of life and well formed, essentially in the former overture style; that it did not receive any applause last night is most peculiar. As far as external accoutrements go, there is much – albeit not too much – being used on ‘Drot og Marsk’.”<sup>10</sup>

In 1899, the overture was published in Axel Grandjean’s piano arrangement for 4 hands, with the title OUVERTURE / til / “Marsk Stig” / Tragedie af C. Hauch / komponeret / af / P. HEISE (OVERTURE / to / ‘Marsk Stig’ / Tragedy by C. Hauch / composed / by / P. HEISE). In spite of the title, this was not an arrangement of the original ‘Marshal Stig’ Overture but rather of the opera version presented in connection with the premiere of King and Marshal in 1878, that is to say, the somewhat abbreviated version. Presumably, this piano arrangement has been the cause of the widespread opinion in posterity that Heise simply re-used his twenty year old composition in its full extent.

According to Gustav Hetsch, Heise’s reason for shortening the overture even further immediately after the premiere performance was that it – much like the opera on the whole – seemed to be too long in the critics’ estimation:

“As did the first performance, the second, which was presented 4 days later, was also received with a great deal of applause by the audience in the sold-out house. On the second evening, certain abbreviations were made in the overture. Nonetheless, the critics maintained that even more cuts should be carried out.”<sup>11</sup>

Actually, the printed reviews appearing after the premiere do not voice any such critique. It is possible that what Hetsch is referring to were spoken evaluation. In any event, it is certain that Heise chose to abbreviate the overture in a radical way until, in its final form, it retained only the slow introduction. Heise made use of the single blank page in the score positioned between the overture and the first act to compose a new ending – a concise transition of 4 bars, which – attacca – leads over into the first act. This shortened version of the overture is only 54 bars in its length.

The full score of the opera and some of the orchestral parts from The Royal Theatre, however, also seem to indicate that a somewhat less sweeping abbreviation was tested out at a certain time, omitting only the extensive middle section. Axel Grandjean's piano arrangement of the overture for piano duet remarks at the bottom of the first page that the overture was "used in its entirety at the first performance of 'Drot og Marsk', after which the Allegro section was omitted". Unless Grandjean considered the concluding Prestissimo to be part of the Allegro, what he appears to be describing here is, quite precisely, the form of the overture that omits only the extensive middle section. On the other hand, this form is not documented in any way other than through pencil annotations in Heise's autograph score and in some of the appurtenant parts and, in any event, it did not survive the opera's first season, as Heise's inserted transition from the slow introduction to the first act testifies.<sup>12</sup> Grandjean's own piano arrangement of the whole opera (1879, and subsequent reprints) also contains only the overture in the very short form that omits both the Allegro molto and the Prestissimo sections.

Consequently, the overture is known in four different versions:

- Andante – Allegro molto – Prestissimo; 659 bars (the original 'Marshal Stig' Overture from 1856)
- Andante – Allegro molto – Prestissimo; 485 bars (from the first performance of King and Marshal, 1878)

- Andante – Prestissimo; 152 bars (c. 1878, possibly never performed)
- Andante; 54 bars (the final version, with the new transition to the First Act of the opera)

The present edition represents the first version listed above. The other three can be read directly or can be reconstructed from DCM's edition of King and Marshal (cf. the preface to this work).

The overture is a piece of program music that musically sets the scene for the plot and for the central protagonists in Carsten Hauch's play. All things considered, then, what we have here is not an overture to 'Marshal Stig', the play, as it was called in the sources, but rather an overture about Marshal Stig. The music's programmatic character is especially distinct in the present concert overture, where the motifs representing the different persons are in some places unfolded in longer passages and in others confronted by each other in a more dialogue-like form. It was especially some of the latter-mentioned dialogue-like sections and a number of bridge passages that Heise chose to cancel in the opera overture.

One of the recurring motifs is that which, as has been mentioned, takes its point of departure in the song Det dæmred alt i Skoven. There is already an initial reference in the slow introduction (letter B) and it is unfurled in its full extent twice in the Allegro section (letters H and N). Even though, in a musical sense, a line can accordingly be drawn directly from Det dæmred alt i Skoven to the King and Marshal overture, shaped more than twenty years later, Heise did not go as far as to substantially work material from the overture into the opera's various acts. Thus, the overture manifests itself also in King and Marshal as an independent totality, which, with its very own musical material, sets forth a resume of Heise's interpretation of the legend about Marshal Stig.

measures 45-52

Detailed description: This is a page from a musical score titled 'C'. The page contains ten staves of music for various instruments. The first five staves (Flute 1, Flute 2, Oboe 1, Clarinet (B-flat) 1, Bassoon 1) play eighth-note patterns with dynamic marks 'f' and 'rit.'. The next three staves (Coronet (F) 1, Coronet (D) 3, Trombone (D) 1) play sustained notes with dynamic marks 'f'. The last two staves (Trombone (D) 2, Bass Trombone) play eighth-note patterns with dynamic marks 'f'. The Timpani (Timp.) staff shows a rhythmic pattern of eighth-note pairs followed by rests. The bottom five staves (Violin 1, Violin 2, Viola, Cello, Double Bass) play eighth-note patterns with dynamic marks 'f'. Measure 52 concludes with a dynamic 'rit.'.

This musical score page contains six systems of music, each with multiple staves. The instruments are grouped into two main sections: woodwinds and brass.

Woodwind Section:

- Fl. 1 & 2: Flute parts 1 and 2. The first staff starts with a forte dynamic and a sixteenth-note pattern. The second staff has a sustained note followed by eighth-note patterns.
- Ob. 1 & 2: Oboe parts 1 and 2. The first staff has sustained notes and eighth-note patterns. The second staff has sustained notes and quarter-note patterns.
- Cl. (B♭) 1 & 2: Clarinet parts 1 and 2. The first staff starts with a forte dynamic and a sixteenth-note pattern. The second staff has sustained notes and eighth-note patterns.
- Fg. 1 & 2: Bassoon parts 1 and 2. The first staff starts with a forte dynamic and a sixteenth-note pattern. The second staff has sustained notes and eighth-note patterns.

Brass Section:

- Cor. (F) 1 & 2: Horn parts 1 and 2. The first staff has sustained notes and eighth-note patterns. The second staff has sustained notes and eighth-note patterns.
- Cor. (D) 3 & 4: Horn parts 3 and 4. The first staff has sustained notes and eighth-note patterns. The second staff has sustained notes and eighth-note patterns.
- Tr. (D) 1 & 2: Trombone parts 1 and 2. The first staff has sustained notes and eighth-note patterns. The second staff has sustained notes and eighth-note patterns.
- Trb. a. t. & Trb. b.: Trombones and tuba. The first staff has sustained notes and eighth-note patterns. The second staff has sustained notes and eighth-note patterns.
- Timp.: Timpani. The staff shows sustained notes and eighth-note patterns.

String Section:

- Vl. 1 & 2: Violin parts 1 and 2. Both staves feature sixteenth-note patterns throughout the system.
- Va.: Cello. The staff shows sustained notes and eighth-note patterns.
- Vc.: Double bass. The staff shows sustained notes and eighth-note patterns.
- Cb.: Double bass. The staff shows sustained notes and eighth-note patterns.

Musical Elements:

- Dynamic: Dynamics include forte (f), piano (p), and various sustained notes.
- Pedal Points: Sustained notes are present in the oboe, clarinet, bassoon, and double bass parts.
- Figures: Sixteenth-note patterns are prominent in the violin, cello, and double bass parts.
- Measure Lines: Measure lines are used to group measures, particularly in the woodwind and brass sections.

This musical score page contains five systems of music. The first system features woodwind instruments: Flute 1, Flute 2, Oboe 1, Oboe 2, Clarinet (B-flat) 1, Clarinet (B-flat) 2, Bassoon 1, and Bassoon 2. The second system includes brass instruments: Cornet (F) 1, Cornet (F) 2, Cornet (D) 3, Cornet (D) 4, Trombone (D) 1, Trombone (D) 2, Tromba (a.) 1, Tromba (a.) 2, Tromba (b.), and Timpani. The third system consists of strings: Violin 1, Violin 2, Viola, Cello, and Double Bass. Measure 263 begins with a dynamic of p. The woodwinds play sustained notes with grace marks. The brass instruments play eighth-note patterns. The strings play eighth-note patterns with slurs and grace marks. Measures 264-265 show the woodwinds continuing their sustained notes, while the brass and strings provide harmonic support with eighth-note chords.

This musical score page contains five systems of music. The first system features woodwind instruments: Flute 1, Flute 2, Oboe 1, Oboe 2, Clarinet (B-flat) 1, Clarinet (B-flat) 2, Bassoon 1, Bassoon 2, and Horn 1. The second system includes Corals (F) 1, Corals (F) 2, Corals (D) 3, Corals (D) 4, Trombones (D) 1, Trombones (D) 2, Trombone Bass a., Trombone Bass t., and Trombone Bass b. The third system consists of a single timpani part. The fourth system features string instruments: Violin 1, Violin 2, Viola, Cello, and Double Bass. Measure 504 begins with sustained notes from the woodwinds and bassoon, followed by a dynamic marking 'P' (piano). The strings enter with eighth-note patterns in measure 505. Measures 506-507 show various melodic lines from the woodwinds and strings, with dynamic markings like 'p' and '8' (octave). Measures 508-509 conclude the section with sustained notes and eighth-note patterns.

DESCRIPTION OF SOURCES

A Score, draft, autograph

B Instrumental parts, transcript

C Score, fair copy, transcript

A Score, draft, autograph.

DK-Kk, C II, 7k, mu 7106.2768.

Bequest from Vilhelmine Heise, 1913.

Paper type: 20 staves (hand-ruled).

Numerous changes and additions (presumably all by PH) which all can be divided into four distinct stages: 1) changes in same ink as original music made in connection with, or just after, the first notation; 2) additions in red crayon, dealing in particular with reinforcement of the sound in the brass instruments; 3) early changes and additions in pencil, especially completion of phrasing and dynamics; 4) later changes and additions in pencil, especially cancellations of sections with new transitions added. The two first sets of changes are nearly all to be found in Musikforeningen's score (Source C) and thus made between 1855 and February 1858. The early changes in pencil are in most cases added in ink in Musikforeningen's parts (Source B), probably in 1858 or 1865. Since the latest markings in pencil (that is, cuts) agree with the autograph score of the opera overture in Drot og Marsk, Source A has clearly been used as a point of departure for the revision of the overture in connection with the arrangement of the fair copy of the opera in 1877/78 (see introduction). The source includes two sets of disposition markings (pagination) which agree with Musikforeningen's score (C) and the later fair copy of the opera, respectively.

B Instrumental parts, transcript.

DK-Kk, Mf 592.

Transferred to The Royal Library from Musikforeningen, 1937. 33x24.7 cm, 35 instrumental parts (2 fl., 2 ob., 2 cl., 2 fg., 4 cor., 2 tr., trb.a., trb.t., trb.b., timp., 5 vl.1, 4 vl.2, 3 va., 5 vc./ cb.); written in ink in the same hand as Source C; additions in ink, pencil, and crayon; each part consists of one gathering, sewn and pasted together in a cover of blue paper. Covers are stamped '592.' at top left corner.

Paper type: 12 staves (hand-ruled).

Source B contains a fair amount of additions and corrections in ink of the same colour as the original text, and hence in some instances it is difficult to distinguish between them. Some of the additions are added in a foreign hand. Furthermore, a few additions are made in pencil and red and blue crayon.

As Source C, Source B has probably been employed at the overture's first performance at Musikforeningen 27 February, 1858.

The source contains few additions in pencil, especially completion of dynamic markings and cuts corresponding to the later opera overture of Drot og Marsk. The cuts are apparently later than the other pencil markings as dynamic markings added in pencil on pp. 76–79 are cancelled by the cuts.

EVALUATION OF SOURCES

Source A, which is the only source to the 'Marsk Stig' overture in Heise's hand, has been elected as copy text for the present edition. However, the source contains at least four different layers of changes, partly from before or between the performances of the overture in the Musikforeningen and partly from a later revision made in connection with the composing of the opera Drot og Marsk in 1877–78. It is therefore extremely difficult to reproduce the work representing a particular time using only A as basis. Sources B and C are therefore employed as indicators of which changes in A were valid before the revision in the 1870s. Additions and changes in red crayon in A, as well as some of the additions in pencil, are also found in B and C and are thus earlier, that is before February 1858 when the copies for the first performance were made.

Musikforeningen's orchestral material (Source B) and score (Source C) were made by the same copyist. The orchestral parts were apparently not prepared employing Musikforeningen's score, but just as Source C they were copied directly from Heise's holograph score (Source A); this is evident from a number of copying errors in Source C (e.g. vc. bb. 24–25, fl.2 bb. 391–392) which are not found in the orchestral parts. Most of the additions in pencil in A have also been included in ink in B and must therefore date from the time before or around the performances in Musikforeningen (i.e. not later than 1865), even if they have not been included in C. Thus the orchestral material represents one of the composer's revised versions of the overture and is therefore given more importance in the evaluation of variants than Source C.

The edition aims at representing the overture as it was intended by Heise in connection with the last performance in Musikforeningen in 1865. The additions in pencil in A, which are not found in Musikforeningen's copies, have therefore not been taken into consideration since they are interpreted as changes made during the work on Drot og Marsk.

Heise has notated analogous passages in varying degrees of completeness and with numerous, often contradictory deviations not least in terms of slurring and dynamics; a consistent notation has in general therefore not been attempted in these instances. Similarly, vertical completions across different instrument groups have only been made in passages where Heise seems to imply that an exact agreement is intended.

The interpretation of Heise's notation of slurs is at times difficult as he often starts a slur rather before the first note and ends it somewhat after the last note; thus the length of slurs may be hard to determine. In connection with the transition from one system to another as well as at page turns, it might be difficult to establish whether slurs should be interpreted as one single or two separate slurs. In these instances, the present edition bases as far as possible its interpretation on both vertical and horizontal analogies.

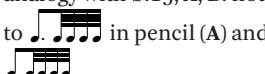

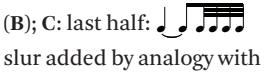

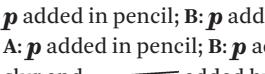

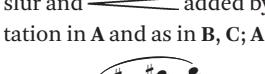

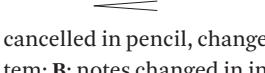

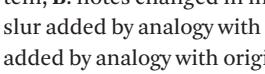

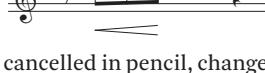

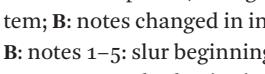

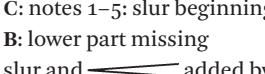

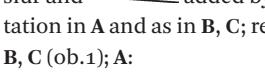

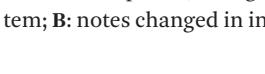

On staves with two instruments, Heise furthermore often notates only one single slur, even in passages notated with double stems. In passages which could have been notated with single stems or a due, it is presumed that the slur applies to both instruments; the emendation is made without comment.

Often Heise notates short crescendo and diminuendo wedges with beginning and ending placed rather inconsistently. The length and the placement of these wedges has in general been normalized tacitly. Heise frequently notates dynamic markings between staves only where they in most cases with certainty apply to both staves. This pertains in particular to vl.1,2 and vc./cb., but may also be seen in the woodwind and brass instruments. As a main rule, such markings are interpreted as applying to both staves and are edited accordingly without comment. In some instances, Heise only notates dynamics at vl. 1 and cb. which the editor has interpreted as applying for the whole group of strings. When the marking is added in the present edition, it has been noted in the commentary as made 'by analogy with vl.1, cb.'

VARIANT READINGS AND EDITORIAL EMENDATIONS

The extensive additions and corrections in Source A are so numerous that a complete listing is not meaningful; the interested reader is therefore encouraged to consult the facsimile edition of the manuscript at www.kb.dk, which enables the reader to study the details regarding the work's early compositional history. Additions and corrections are only described when they are considered to be of special interest or to have a relation to variants and changes in the other sources and hence serve to illustrate the basis for editorial emendations of the musical text. Changes and additions which, on the basis of a comparison with the other sources, seem to have been introduced in connection with the later revision of the overture to the opera, Drot og Marsk, are marked with the comment 'later revision'.
